Reports concern Richfield parents

Knife incident keeps kids at home

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer

RICHFIELD — Attendance suffered at Richfield School Tuesday as parents kept students home after reports that a student had brought a knife to campus last week.

About 30 of the K-12 school's 190 students were absent Tuesday, Superintendent Larry Turgoose said. Some parents called the school Tuesday morning to check on security, and Turgoose said he had a Lincoln County sheriff's deputy on campus in the morning, but the deputy could not stay all day.

"Students feel safer at school and are still safer in school than any other place," Turgoose said.

The incident reportedly occurred on April 19, but it was not brought to the district's attention until Monday, he said. The student also is reported to have said, during a class discussion about occupations, that he wanted to be a mass murderer, Turgoose said.

A boy was arrested publicly to the knife incident was in police custody Tuesday, charged in connection with an unrelated incident.

The Lincoln County prosecutor's office charged two boys with grand theft of a firearm, a felony. One of the two boys had been identified publicly by parents at a Monday School Board meeting as the boy who had brought the knife to school.

Brenda Farnsworth, vice chairman of the School Board, said the boy had been named at the meeting by parents concerned that he had threatened students in class with a knife. Not all parties involved in the incident were present at the meeting, she said, and the district still must gather more information.

Neither boy's parents or lawyer could be reached for comment Tuesday.

Farnsworth said she did not keep her own child home from school Tuesday, but said she might have felt differently had her child been threatened.

McCain tours Vietnam

U.S. Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., greets a Vietnamese man Tuesday in Hanoi along the shores of Lake Truc Bach. In October 1967, his jet was shot down and he landed in the lake. Vietnamese citizens pulled him from the lake and beat him.

Ex-POW returns without rancor

HANOI, Vietnam — Shaking hands with a crowd of Vietnamese, a nostalgic John McCain returned Tuesday to the Hanoi lake where in 1967 he was dragged ashore and beaten after parachuting from his downed warplane.

The bitter war has yielded to reconciliation, and the Arizona senator strolled with his family around the busy waterfront of the capital's Truc Bach lake, stopping at a sidewalk memorial marking the spot where the Vietnam War behind met a long time ago.

McCain said upon arriving in Vietnam on Tuesday, "no anger, no rancor."

People on the street seemed to feel the same. A crowd of Vietnamese gathered around McCain as he walked, greeting him as a friend and shaking his hand.

McCain, who spent more than five years as a prisoner of war, he is now a leading proponent of rebuilding relations with the impoverished communist nation.

Vietnam celebrates the 25th anniversary of the end of the war on Sunday, and the former presidential candidate is the most prominent of the numerous returning U.S. veterans. "My job here is to commemorate the beginning and continuation of a new relationship between the United States and Vietnam," said McCain, who was instrumental in negotiating formal ties five years ago.

Shortly after he arrived, McCain attended a solemn airport repatriation ceremony in which an 11-person military honor guard placed six small

Sun Valley ... Utah?

Name-change plan gets cold reception up north

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Sun Valley West and Sun Valley East? Sun Valley Sr. and Sun Valley Jr.?

A proposal to change the name of the Snowbasin ski resort in Utah to "Sun Valley" was the subject of much talk on the chairlift and fodder for conversation this week, even as the for-now-only Sun Valley Resort wrapped up its 40th season.

But eyes as the question captures skiers' imagination. It doesn't appear to be drawing much support.

"My question is: Where will the luggage end up?" said Mac McDonald of Boise, as he prepared to board the Warm Springs chairlift.

"There's only one Sun Valley, and it's here, not there," added Larry Williams of Twin Falls.

Earl Holding, who owns Sun Valley and Snowbasin, has privately considered renaming Snowbasin ever since he purchased the ski area near Ogden, Utah, in 1984.

The idea resurfaced recently when an article in Ski Area Management magazine suggested that the two areas could be a great management tool, said Wally Huffcutt, general manager of Sun Valley Co.

The idea: Have some of the glitz and glamour of the nation's first ski resort rub off on Snowbasin, to date a sleepy, non-descript ski area tucked out of the mainstream ski area.

The benefit: The Sun Valley name would be more recognizable, times curing the 2002 Winter Olympics when Snowbasin hosts the downhill.

Huffcutt said he was assessing input on the question.

Close to the original Sun Valley, the input seems to favor maintaining the status quo.

Renaming Snowbasin would be like trying to name a nondescript tract of desert land out in the desert Yellowstone National Park, said Carol Waller, executive director of the Sun Valley/Ketchum Chamber of Commerce.

It's smart marketing to co-promote two ski areas, but it would confuse things, she added.

"Sun Valley is a brand name with international name recognition. People from all over the world recognize it, whether it's Sun Valley, Idaho, or maybe like Sun Valley Services, or because of its skiing. I don't think you want to get it confused," she added.

Skier Jim Kilmer, who moved to the Wood River Valley for its skiing, agreed.

"I've been to Snowbasin, and Snowbasin is not Sun Valley," Kilmer said. "Earl Holding with the success he's had throughout his life, has had a lot of good ideas, but this isn't one of them."

For now, the Sun Valley name will be used, and the two areas could

As expected, Clinton vetoes Yucca measure

WASHINGTON — President Clinton fulfilled a promise Tuesday and vetoed legislation that would have cleared the way for thousands of tons of highly radioactive nuclear waste to be shipped to Yucca Mountain in Nevada.

Neveda lawmakers and environmental groups hailed the action, which blocked transportation of 40,000 tons of the lethal material that has piled up at commercial reactors in 31 states. Ultimately, the waste would have been stored at the site 90 miles northwest of Las Vegas, Idaho's National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory has some of the waste slated for the Yucca site.

Appeals court: Ohio's state slogan can't refer to God

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ohio's motto, "With God, all things are possible," was declared unconstitutional Tuesday by a federal appeals court that said the phrase cannot be separated from its biblical context as part of a discussion of salvation.

The ACLU, representing the Rev. Matthew Peterson, a Presbyterian minister in suburban Cleveland, challenged all official uses of the motto, which was adopted in 1959 and has appeared for years on the Ohio seal, state of state stationery, on some state reports and on Ohio tax returns.

"This is maybe the blandest statement about God that has ever been struck down," said Douglas Laycock, professor of law at the University of Texas.

According to Cohn, two federal appeals courts since 1970 have ruled that "In God We Trust" is permissible and does not amount to a government sponsorship or endorsement of religion.

In a dissent, Circuit Judge David Neil said he found Ohio's motto no more troubling than the words "In God We Trust" on U.S. coins.

locate the entire bunch. The alpha male and female were among the four moved north, but the male returned 175 miles to his old grounds.

Federal officials killed two of the White Clouds pack on April 8, two on April 20 and one the next day, including the alpha male.

An omega female — which is low on the pack's pecking order — was among those moved from the White Clouds, Hines said. Such a female is a "disperser," which will cover a lot of ground before meeting another pack.

boxes of remains, believed to be from U.S. servicemen, into silver metal coffins.

Today, McCain will visit Hoa Lo Prison — the "Hanoi Hilton," as POWs called it, where he spent his years in captivity. He has said his hardships there included beatings, lack of privacy, a modicum of treatment for injuries, and a total of three years in solitary confinement for what his captors called a "bad attitude."

He twice tried to hang himself, using his shirt as a noose, but was caught both times by the guards, who then beat him.

"I couldn't control my despair," McCain wrote in his autobiography. "All my pride was lost, and I doubted I would ever stand up to any man again. Nothing could save me."

On Tuesday, McCain, who visited the prison on a previous trip, recalled his time in captivity. "I had the privilege of serving in the company of heroes," he said. "I observed a thousand acts of courage, compassion and love and memory above all others."

Most of the prison was torn down in 1993 to make way for Hanoi Tower, an upscale office complex and hotel in central Hanoi.

One wing of the faded yellow fortress was preserved and opened as a museum three years ago.

Heberger said the department was unsure of the number of wolves remaining in the White Clouds pack.

They are the offspring of 35 reintroduced in the central wilderness in 1995 and 1996. Biologists believe there are more than 150 roaming Idaho's recovery area now.

But federal rules do not allow the wolves to be removed from the endangered species list until the Idaho, northwestern Montana and the Yellowstone National Park recovery areas each have 10 breeding pairs for three consecutive years.

has been trying to force down the use of the site. The people, not only Indians, like the health and safety of every Nevadan, but puts millions of other Americans at risk," said Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev.

But Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, and head of the Energy and Resources Committee, criticized the president for leaving unresolved where the nation will permanently store its nuclear waste, which remains lethal for 10,000 years.

Murkowski said of the veto: "It is irresponsible to let this situation continue — it is a crime against our future."

He and other supporters of the legislation vowed to try to override the veto, beginning in the Senate. The timing will be crucial because the margin is so close. A vote probably won't occur this week because two Republicans are traveling, said Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho.

Nevada's House and Senate approved the measure by the two-thirds majority needed to override a veto. The House approved it 252-167 and the Senate 64-34.

Craig said if override efforts fail, federal officials will have to work with states to decide how to store the accumulating waste from plants that generate 21 percent of the nation's power.

Bryan and Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., expect "relentless" legislative efforts to store waste at Yucca Mountain. They prefer storing the waste at scores of locations across the country in containers that Reid said would be safe for 100 years, when science might find a better solution.

Clinton had promised not to sign the bill, but his veto did not include a criticism of the Yucca Mountain site. He criticized the bill for postponing the Environmental Protection Agency's authority to set radiation standards at the site for a year, until mid-2001, which would delay the Energy Department's recommendation about the site's suitability.

"Unfortunately, the bill passed by Congress will do nothing to advance the scientific program at Yucca Mountain or promote public confidence in the decision of whether or not to recommend the site for a repository in 2001," Richardson said.

Energy Secretary Bill Richardson deflected questions about where the administration would store the waste without a central repository. The administration will focus first on sustaining the veto, he said.

Asset forfeiture can lead agencies to maze of legal issues

America's war on drugs has claimed some innocent victims over the years—including, at times, the Fourth Amendment of the Bill of Rights. In case you don't remember it, the Fourth Amendment says, "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated..."

Overzealous cops and prosecutors sometimes stumble over the Fourth Amendment in their haste to separate drug dealers from their ill-gotten gains. In addition to snaring drugs, the net cast by law enforcement also includes cash, cars, firearms and sometimes even homes.

Asset forfeiture, as it's known, is a tricky business when it intersects with private property rights. The U.S. Congress recognizes this, which is why it recently approved a bill limiting Uncle Sam's authority to seize private property.

Here in Twin Falls County, Prosecutor Grant Loeb has placed generally reasonable restrictions on civil asset forfeiture. His challenger in the Republican primary, Mark Murphy, wants to expand asset forfeiture into areas where it doesn't belong. Voters would be wise to keep this distinction in mind next month.

Asset forfeiture is pretty straightforward in obvious drug cases. It's fair game if the seized item was acquired with the proceeds from illegal activities of a drug dealer who was convicted on criminal charges.

But many drug cases aren't so clear-cut. When teenagers are caught selling marijuana out of their parents' home, is the home fair game for seizure? Or a he'd-well-dealing crank out of his wife's car?

More fundamentally, should cops and prosecutors be allowed to seize a suspected drug dealer's assets when they can't convict the suspected dealer on criminal charges? If happens occasionally, because criminal cases require proof "beyond a reasonable doubt." Civil cases have a lower standard of proof, a mere "preponderance of evidence."

Transferring seized assets from drug dealers to the people who arrested and prosecuted them sets up a classic conflict of interest.

But we're also leery of law enforcement agencies using asset forfeiture to line their own nests. Once cops and prosecutors develop an appetite for seized assets, they are walking an ethical tightrope that often leads to a conflict of interest.

In Twin Falls County, 30 percent of the proceeds from seized assets goes into a special drug enforcement fund in the prosecutor's office. The other 70 percent goes into a similar fund maintained by the law enforcement agency that made the seizure.

Though not used to pay salaries, seized assets do subsidize other expenses in the prosecutor's office, local police departments, and the county sheriff's office. The amounts are small, totaling only $26,256, eight cars and several guns in 1998, but the underlying principle is significant.

Transferring seized assets from drug dealers to the people who arrested and prosecuted them sets up a classic conflict of interest. It's bad enough when the dealer is convicted on criminal charges, but it would be intolerable in the absence of a criminal conviction.

Asset seizures have been abused elsewhere, and it could happen here again. The best way to ensure that it doesn't is to invest seized assets in society's broader needs, not law enforcement budgets.

Assault is never OK

This letter is for all the narrow-minded people who think beating someone up is OK. Both parties involved broke the law, i.e., skateboarders vs. Turley. When Mr. Turley saw that the situation started to escalate, he should have called police for back-up. But Mr. Turley chose not to, taking matters into his own hands to confront these boys. He was not provoked. I'm sure Mr. Turley knew it is against the law to put your hands on somebody. The last I heard, beating is a crime. It's about time more people think Mr. Turley was in the right. And since Mr. Turley is a boxer, albeit a pro or an amateur, he should also be charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

It disturbs me to think more people here condone violence as a way of discipline. Wake up, and help stop this vicious cycle. Try attending a domestic violence group sometime; you might learn the difference between violence and discipline. And quit stereotyping these kids as thugs. Remember, they all wore diapers once and had to call mommy for help. Everybody is responsible for their own actions. Nobody lets the sum of all alcoholics to take another drink nor the heroin addict to shoot up again.

I'm all for the skateboard park; why not? We all have civil rights in this country. Also, I do not know any parties involved. Remember the youth of today. As the future of tomorrow.

Second childhood...

Clinton Administration has no shame

Until recently, the knock on the door in the middle of the night by armed agents of the state was the history of Jews in Nazi Germany, or Russians in the old Soviet Union. It was the stuff of novels by Arthur Koestler and Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn. Then came Ruby Ridge and Waco and now Miami. No wonder Fidel Castro praises Janet Reno and Bill Clinton. They performed that made the seizure.

Though not used to pay salaries, seized assets do subsidize other expenses in the prosecutor's office, local police departments, and the county sheriff's office. The amounts are small, totaling only $26,256, eight cars and several guns in 1998, but the underlying principle is significant.

see what they did. We have the photographic equivalent of the stained dress.

This is America, not some third-world dictatorship where the wishes of top government officials are carried out by force. This wasn't a hostage situation or a crack house in need of raiding.

We are led to believe by those inside the administration that if Elian had not been seized, Castro would have released thousands of Cuban to flood Florida shores in this election year. So it would appear that Clinton-Reno were not acting in the best interests of Elian, but rather in the interests of the respective candidates of Al Gore and Hillary Clinton.

This administration would not order an bombing during Ramadan. It has honored Jewish holidays. But for the mostly Catholic neighborhood of Little Havana in Miami, it didn't mind disrespecting the holiest weekend on the Christian calendar.

According to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, which was ratified by the United States in 1992, the views of children must be respected. Elian Gonzalez gave notice in a signed document and verbally that he wishes to remain in the United States.

and not return with his father to Cuba. Now mind-controllers, masquerading as pediatricians and child psychologists, will persuade him to recant. Look for his asylum plea to be withdrawn at or before the May 11 court hearing.

This child will be returned to Cuba. Thus saith the Clinton Administration, and Castro's religious agent, the National Council of Churches. Once America was a safe haven from communism.

Where are the Republicans in this? What happened to the pledge by Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott to pass legislation granting citizenship to Elian Gonzalez? All we get from them are worthless after-the-fact condemnations.

Sen. Bob Graham, Florida Democrat, says President Clinton should not when he proposed the boy should not be taken at night. Welcome to the legions of those lied to by this president, Senator.

If this is to be the policy of the U.S. government, let's take the torch from Lady Liberty's hand and replace it with an automatic weapon, cover up the Emma Lazarus poem about sending your tired and poor to our shores and post a "no trespassing" sign instead. Padlock the Golden Door, because this is not our parents' America. It does no good to cry "shame" at this administration. They have done what they should be on us if we don't cleanse ourselves from them and the one they would like to be their heir in November.

Make your voice heard

The Army Corps of Engineers has extended the deadline for testimony on how to save Idaho's salmon. The deadline is now April 30. Anyone who has not had an opportunity to speak on this issue should write the Army Corps of Engineers, Walla Walla District, Attn: Salmon Recovery Study, 201 N. Third Ave., Walla Walla, WA 99362-1876. You may also go to <http://www.nww.usace.army.mil/pps/srcomments/default.asp> and post your comments.

Most scientists say breaching the Lower Snake River dams must be part of any successful recovery plan. Economic studies show dam removal is affordable and the least expensive option on the table.

Please send a note to the Army Corps saying you support dam removal because it is the correct way to remove Snake River salmon to self-sustaining, harvestable levels required by laws and treaties. Ask that southern Idaho water be protected and mitigation measures be put in place to protect those who would be negatively impacted.

Support Loeb for prosecutor

I have always had great respect for the office of county prosecutor, perhaps more than any other local office. I know that it is very demanding of time, energy and personal integrity. And I would assume it requires exceptional managerial skills, given the number of cases.

Based on your reporting thus far, I am impressed with Grant Loeb's professional background and his Republican credentials. I like the fact that he has served the American people in Washington, D.C. in the Senate and the Pentagon. I like the fact that he has served in Twin Falls County for seven years in the prosecutor's office. I also like what Judge Roger Burdick said in your paper about Grant and his office not abusing plea bargaining and using resources "efficiently."

"We are not a rich county. An efficient use of resources" is a good thing. I don't know Grant's opponent. But I know he's not from here. I know The Times-News said he was once a Democrat. My question for him is: If he's a Democrat from Pocatello, why doesn't he run in Pocatello as a Democrat?

Anyway, I will support Grant Loeb in the May 23 Republican primary, and I would urge others to do the same.

Show some compassion

I was disgusted to see the lack of sensitivity and compassion The Times-News showed toward Kevin Stanger and his family in the newspaper on April 18. To tide the picture of his truck as "Smashed potatoes" leads me to believe you don't have heart.

A man is lying in a hospital in critical condition and you are making fun of him and the accident he was in. If the only thing that had happened in that accident would have been a few spilled and broken potatoes, it might have been "cute," but the results of that accident were much more serious. I can only hope that his family didn't have to see your display of insensitivity.

My best wishes and prayers go out to Kevin Stanger and his family.

Cops: Train slaying suspect fired gun

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The man accused of running his ex-girlfriend's car in front of an oncoming train had allegedly shot her boyfriend last year, but the man refused to press charges.

Berie County District Attorney Mark Baldwin said Tuesday he was considering seeking the death penalty against Carlos Angel Diaz Santiago, 22, in the Deaths of ex-boyfriend, her friend, and two children in the car.

Authorities said that if the boyfriend had pursued charges against Santiago last year, it might have prevented last week's deadly crash. Santiago was charged with four counts of homicide plus aggravated assault and other charges for Thursday's crash. Police said Santiago argued with Candace Wertz at a restaurant Thursday, then chased her in his car at speeds of up to 90 mph for a half-hour in Reading, about 50 miles northwest of Philadelphia.

TWIN FALLS - Local and state police have written letters bucking the record of TV in Flores County Prosecutor Grant Loeks while refusing claims made by his opponent in the upcoming primary election.

Loeks and his opponent, Mark Murphy, will face off in the May 23 Republican primary.

During the campaign, Murphy has criticized Loeks' record, saying that more than half of felonies charged were dismissed or reduced and half of sex crimes charged were dismissed.

Murphy has also said Loeks' office does not do enough asset forfeiture cases, which allow the taking of cash and property from drug dealers.

"There could be more asset forfeiture if the prosecutor took the lead," Murphy said.

In an April 24 letter Twin Falls Police Chief Lee DeVore and Capt. Jim Massey expressed their satisfaction with Loeks' office and the job he has done.

"The high level of cooperation between our agencies brings a high level of professionalism to work. It often a tough and thankless job, but he does a good job."

The latter refutes Murphy's statistics regarding felony prosecutions, calling the 50 percent dismissal and reduction rate a "gross misrepresentation of the facts."

The letter also says sex offenders are prosecuted "vigorously and appropriately" in Twin Falls County.

DeVore and Massey also wrote that Loeks has used asset forfeiture in every appropriate instance.

Murphy Tuesday stood by his 50 percent figure and had little to say about the letters.

Murphy has also criticized Loeks' handling of evidence in the vehicular manslaughter case of Richard Lohman, whose tractor-trailer's faulty brakes led to a fatal collision with a motor home.

The tractor-trailer was impounded while the case progressed and more than $19,000 in impound fees were amassed and paid by the Idaho State Police, Murphy said.

Planting life: Cities observe Arbor Day

TWIN FALLS - The celebration may be two days earlier than normal, but the idea is the same - to plant life.

Twin Falls will have an Arbor Day ceremony today instead of Friday - the official Arbor Day.

Not to worry though, trees will still be planted.

Twin Falls city leaders - including Mayor Elaine Steele and members of the city's Tree Commission - and the Twin Falls High School Key Club, a junior Kiwanis Club, will hold a ceremony in honor of Arbor Day at Oregon Trail Elementary School.

The Key Club will plant four trees on school grounds: an autumn blazed maple, a honey locust, a purple ash and a green spire linden tree.

Steele will also make a proclamation declaring Friday as Arbor Day in Twin Falls.

The city will be presented its 1999 Tree City USA Award and a "Growth Award" from the National Arbor Day Foundation. This is the second year that Twin Falls received national recognition from the foundation.

Twin Falls has been a tree city for a year. To be a tree city, a city must meet certain criteria, including having a tree board or department, a tree care ordinance, a community forestry program and an Arbor Day observance.

Dixie Mead, the tree commission's publicity chairman, said Twin Falls is not a typical tree environment.

Because Twin Falls is in desert terrain, trees are not abundant. Most of the city's

Drafting students help with concepts for Exit 208

By Lorraine Cavener

RUPERT - Two Minico High School drafting students are gaining some real-life experience while helping out Minidoka County officials.

County commissioners were looking for some help with some conceptual ideas for a project at Exit 208, a 55-acre parcel that could be sold for development.

Commissioner John Remberg recently got advice from Marvin Scow, the head of Minico's drafting department, who recommended two architectural drafting students help commissioners with the project. Seniors Buck Fife and Matt Smith had recently completed a drafting project for the school district.

"We just got done drawing all the site plans for every school in the district," Smith said.

Commissioners were impressed with the students' nationally, Remberg said.

Commissioners asked the students to create concepts for a motel, convention center, restaurant, recreational facilities and other ideas.

"They want about five different ideas," Smith said. "They want to attract people into the area."

Tuesday, Fife and Smith began making measurements and doing preliminary work. They plan to draw the existing pond and property layout to scale, Fife said.

Recreational facilities could include miniature golf and a large swimming pool, Smith said.

"There is nothing around here that has that for kids," he said.

Fife and Smith hope to plan to attend Idaho State University and enroll in the electro-mechanical drafting program. Completing the program will qualify the students for a variety

Focus on the finances

House candidate says he's for fiscal responsibility

By Michael Journee
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Idaho House candidate George Swan painted himself as a conservative concerned about preserving the state's financial responsibility Tuesday.

Swan, who was selected by local Republicans earlier this month to succeed Rep. Randy Hansen, R-Twin Falls, said the environment and education will be his top priorities if he wins November's general election. However, the former Rogerson-area rancher and immodest past president of the American Cattlemen's Beef Association comes at those issues from a decidedly different perspective than most.

Swan said his experience as a rancher and lobbyist in the beef cattle industry has him firmly rooted as a champion of small livestock and farming operations. But he also said people with environmental concerns, agricultural concerns and even recreational concerns will all need to work together in order to achieve goals.

"Land has become a 365-day-a-year multiple-use resource," Swan told the Times-News editorial board Tuesday.

He envisions a coalition of livestock, environmental representatives and recreational land users helping to address issues facing land use in the west.

But his personal position won't shift very far from traditional ranching interests.

"The resources should be used, but used responsibly," Swan said. "I am a rancher, but I live in the Three Creek area, Swan said he will also take a particular interest in education.

"Why in the world does Idaho have to rank so low?" he asked, referring to Idaho's low national ranking in the area of academic achievement. While Swan said he was pleased with the $32 million education budget increase, he said just throwing money at the state's education problems will not necessarily provide a solution.

"I want to find out if we're spending that money the right way," he said. "I don't know the answer to that yet, but I want to find out."

Swan also said that the one-time across-the-board income tax break approved by the legislature was an insult to taxpayers. Totaling $12.5 million overall, the measure would provide minuscule relief to the individual taxpayer. It would be better to leave that money in the state treasury until a consensus among lawmakers could allow more significant relief.

But, he said, it's better for the money to remain in taxpayers' pockets.

"As individuals can do a better job using that money to stimulate the economy," he said.

BUREAU - Most consumers have probably lost their vegetable peelers - it's been so long since they've had to peel a carrot, said George Swan, former president of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, at Tuesday evening's round table discussion on farming issues in Burley.

Bags of baby carrots and pre-washed lettuce have become popular the last few years and all producers need to be more consumer-oriented, Swan said.

He said to expect a great change in the beef industry in the next few years, as beef pro-

Park Service makes move to limit snowmobile use in numerous areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Park Service is moving to restrict or ban snowmobiling entirely in many parks — a use of snowmobiles, government and private sources said Tuesday.

Snowmobiles currently are allowed in more than 40 parks, although conservationists have complained about their noise and air pollution, especially as their popularity has grown in recent years.

An announcement on "measures to reduce recreation use of snowmobiles" is national park was to be made at a news conference Thursday, the Interior Department said.

The latest actions are aimed at halting "the escalating recreational use of snowmobiles" within the national park system, according to the department advisory.

No additional details about the decision could be learned Tuesday.

Environmental groups and the National Parks and Conservation Association, a private park advocacy group, have argued that the Park Service for years has failed to enforce existing regulations against recreational snowmobiling at many national parks.

Under regulations dating back to the 1970s, the Park Service is required to monitor off-road vehicle use — including snowmobiles — and prohibit such uses if it is determined that they are causing environmental damage, said Kevin Collins, director of National Parks and Conservation Association.

Instead, the Park Service has allowed virtually unrestricted snowmobile use in many of the parks "with almost no analysis of environmental effects," said Collins.

The decision dealing with snowmobiles is likely to affect many of the 28 parks outside of Alaska where snowmobiling now takes place, those familiar with the issue said Tuesday. But it also is likely to be excluded from a snowmobile ban because parks in that state are governed by a different set of regulations.

In addition, the Voyageurs National Park in Minnesota is likely to be left out of the review because snowmobile use was specifically permitted when Congress created that park, Collins said.

The following are park units outside of Alaska where recreational snowmobiling is allowed, according to the National Parks and Conservation Association:

Appalachian National Scenic Trail; Acadia National Park in Maine; Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area in Montana and Wyoming; Blue Ridge Parkway in North Carolina and Virginia; Black Canyon of the Gunnison

National Park in Colorado; Cedar Breaks National Monument in Utah; Crater Lake National Park in Oregon; Curecanti National Recreation Area in Colorado;

Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area in New Jersey and Pennsylvania; Dinosaur National Monument in Colorado and Utah; Grand Portage National Monument in Minnesota; Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming; Herbert Hoover National Historic Site in Iowa; John D. Rockefeller Memorial Parkway in Wyoming; Lake Chelan National Recreation Area; Mount Rainier National Park, North Cascades National Park, Olympic National Park, and Ross Lake National Recreation Area, all in Washington state; Perry's Victory and International Peace Memorial in Ohio; Pictured Rocks National Seashore in Michigan; Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado; Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Parks in California; Saint Croix National Scenic Riverway in Wisconsin; Theodore Roosevelt National Park in North Dakota; Voyageurs National Park in Minnesota; Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana; Zion National Park in Utah.

Hailey mulls light pollution solutions

By Karen Bosnick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Idaho Power Co. will add a clause talking about ways the company might help Hailey cut down on light pollution in the franchise agreement the company is currently negotiating.

City Council members on Monday asked the company to insert such a clause after Hailey city manager Edelstein suggested that cutoff lighting devices directing light down instead of up in the sky be considered in future lighting schemes.

"This is a great opportunity to ask Idaho Power to be a good neighbor," Edelstein said.

The city Planning and Zoning Commission has been examining the idea of adopting a dark sky ordinance, which mandates shielded and cut-off lighting fixtures to eliminate light shining sideways or upwards. Such lighting eliminates unwanted glare on other people's property and helps preserve a view of the stars.

A paragraph with an "eye to the future" would be foreshadowed, even though the city does not presently have a dark sky ordinance in place, said councilwoman Susan McBryant.

Dan Olmstead, of Idaho Power Co., said the franchise agreement, regarding one which expired a few years ago, is more complicated than the previous agreement.

The first one developed 50 years ago, was a half-page long. This one is 12 pages long. The council will do three readings before making its final decision.

In other action Monday:

• The council approved the vacation of the southern unapproved portion of Cedar Street, according to the wishes of property owners Ken and Cindy Ward.

• A discussion on Airport West is tentatively scheduled for June 26.

"My only problem is whether or not it's ours to vacate," said McBryant, noting that the county had already given approval to vacate. "But I'll be happy to vacate it even if it's not ours."

Hailey resident Bill Cantrell voiced concerns with preliminary plans for Airport West. Cantrell said there are a variety of other options, including leaving Broadford Road as it presently exists and making Airport Way the primary access to Airport West and the airport.

"To change every street from residential to a commercial area for Airport West and our local airport is a frightening thought for any parent," he said. "Having an airport customer, late for a flight, speeded by my house is an unneeded worry and a tragedy waiting to happen."

A discussion on Airport West is tentatively scheduled for June 26.

"Mike was very impressed with the ARTEC program at Jerome High School," said Lucy Willis, a spokeswoman for the congressional office.

Simpson had asked to learn more about ARTEC's programs and what he could do at the national level to support technical education, said Claire Major, assistant ARTEC director.

Continuation of existing federal support for technical programs and possible tax incentives for businesses that contribute to the coalition's effort were among local suggestions, Willis said.

ARTEC reports that 24 students in Jerome already have taken one or more Microsoft industry certification tests and have a 68 percent success rate on the first try, compared with a 40 percent success rate nationally.

Jerome, Buhl, Burley and Heyburn have scheduled Arbor Day celebrations Friday.

In Jerome, Mayor Dennis Moore and Robert Humphrey, chairman of the city tree committee, will be joined by Boy Scout Troop 139 of Jerome and others.

Jerome was named a tree city in 1996.

Other Idaho tree cities include Boise, a tree city for 21 years;

Heyburn, which has been a tree city for two years; and Poetello, also a tree city for two years.

Local nurseries are also celebrating Arbor Day, with increased sales.

allows a school district to borrow money for school construction, to be paid off with long-term taxes. One such bond issue failed in Minidoka County last fall.

The district plans to survey voters on what they think before deciding if and when to hold another bond issue election, Hallett said.

The levy only needed a simple majority to pass.

"Wow, that is good," Hallett said.

Hallett said he was pleased with the results though voter turnout was poor. There were 1,387 people who showed up at the polls, compared to 4,400 voters who cast ballots in last fall's failed bond election.

The levy passed on Tuesday will bring in $1.89 million over the course of two years and replace an existing levy that expires this year.

The levy won't add to a property owner's taxes unless the property's appraised value increases, said School Board member George MacDonald.

To figure tax from the levy, multiply .0011537 times the taxable value of your property. The annual tax bill for the current levy is $43.61 for a house with a market value of $70,000, after accounting for a homeowner's exemption.

Hallett emphasized the levy is not a bond issue. A bond issue could help the district reach its goal of placing more than one computer in every classroom. The levy could also help pay for repairs such as those needed at Acequia Elementary School, where boxes of copy paper are stacked in the corner of a restroom due to lack of storage space.

Tables and equipment in the chemistry lab at Minico High School are the same as they were nearly 50 years ago.

Antiquated shutters, or louvers, outside of Heyburn Elementary School, pose a possible fire hazard.

Heyburn Principal Greg Lowe said many of the single-paned windows are still in place at the school, built in 1937.

The district has many aging buildings. Though they require considerable maintenance, they still have some good years left, Hallett said.

Minidoka County School District facilities and equipment include 12 1/2 acres indoors, 140 acres of playing fields, and 70 buses, requiring replacement over a 12-year depreciation schedule.

The district has about 4,600 students at 10 building sites. Times-News staff writer Lorraine Cavenier can be reached at the Mini-Cassia Bureau at Burley at 677-4042 or by e-mail at

Babbitt calls for mining law reform

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt returned to his hometown Tuesday to find what he called a "sacred-golden scar" at the base of the snow-capped and ponderosa pine-covered San Francisco Peaks.

Joined by some 100 American Indians and environmentalists at the White Vulcan pumice mine north of Flagstaff, Ariz., Babbitt criticized a century-old law that governs mining on federal land and allowed miners to create that so-called scar.

"I had no idea such a sacrifice had been perpetrated on this area," he said, referring to piling over a ledge into the mining hole that plunge at least 100 feet down.

Thirteen Indian tribes have rallied to close the mine because they consider the peaks one of four sacred mountains that delineate boundaries they should live within.

They also want a change in the 1872 Mining Law, which allows companies to mine without paying royalties to the government for the minerals they get. The law also lets companies buy land for as little as $2.50 an acre.

Babbitt said he's working to convince Congress to change the law. But so far, he has faced some tough opposition from western Republicans who argue such mining operations are one of the few high-paying jobs in the rural West.

Babbitt said he expects a tough political battle, especially in an election year, but told supporters he'll continue pushing for the changes.

"From my perspective, (the peaks) are our church. I would find it difficult to rip up our church," Babbitt said.

He tried to understand why the miners, most of whom are Navajo — continue mining for pumice. "To me, it's like mining the Sistine Chapel for marble."

Sam Wilson is one of those miners — a Navajo who is paid well for his work at White Vulcan Mine. He's worked there for 12 years and argued that the peaks are not destroyed by mining pumice.

"The mining is that this earth has been given to us for use," Wilson said. "We're using what it gives us. We use it to make a living."

Wilson was one of four mine employees who showed up to defend the operation. He said once the area has been reclaimed — which involves pouring the removed earth back into the mine's gaping holes and replanting the area — it will look as though "nothing ever happened here."

Grant cited solutions such as long-term trade with China, an aggressive representation of ag interests in the World Trade Organization and lowering the current world average tariff of 45 percent to match the U.S. average of 4 percent.

Declo farmer Winston Inouye, who farms about 650 acres of potatoes and sugar beets, said government assistance is good for the short term, but that it is time to look at the future.

"We certainly welcome those things to help keep afloat, but the long-term solution for us is getting our things abroad," he said.

ducers teaming up with packers are showing signs they're thinking like retailers who are adding value to the product.

"We need to start thinking about what we're producing for the consumer," Swant told a roomful of farmers, county and state officials and leaders in agriculture.

Not all is bad, such as the first time in more than 20 years the beef industry has seen demand increase for bone-in steaks. But the beef industry is still working hard on goals such as eliminating death and estate taxes on farms and getting rules and regulations written for mandatory price reporting by June.

Several participants agreed it's time to reform the farm bill. Farmers are still heavily in debt to the government, said Dick Rush, executive director for the Idaho USDA Farm Service Agency. The 1996 farm bill was supposed to get the government out of agriculture, and the opposite is happening — we are making record payments, Rush said.

The agency made $280 million in payments to Idaho farmers in 1999, with $200 million of that in direct payments, he said.

Raft River sugar beet farmer Mike Wheeler, who is also president of the Cassia County Beet Growers, pointed out that some of the beet growers present at Tuesday night's discussion earned less of a profit than farmers in 35 leading sugar producing countries.

An American farmer can compete against another, Wheeler said, but the American farmer cannot compete against foreign turbines and subsidies.

Since the 1996 farm bill the price of sugar has dropped steadily, from 29 cents to 23 cents a pound, while consumer prices have risen, Wheeler said. The cost of cereal, for example, has risen 6 percent since 1996, he said.

Farmers are good trade, said Duane West, president of Idaho Wheat Growers, as an alternative to corn, which in past years producers have been unable to sell after several years of accumulation, and growing less, which is too restrictive, Rush said.

The trick is to get rid of the ISP searched for a witness who saw the crash. The woman called the ISP office the day after the crash, but the tape was erased and police did not have her name until she came in months later.

Once the case reached court, the evidence could not be released until it was examined by Loeb. Loeb said he believed the evidence in this matter was handled in a manner appropriate for such cases.

One reason for the long impound was that the case was delayed for several months while Lohman eventually pleaded guilty to two counts of vehicular manslaughter and was sentenced to a three- to six-year prison term.

Loeb said he hoped the letters would silence what he called "deliberate distortions" made by Murphy.

"This should put an end to these ridiculous claims once and for all," Loeb said.

NRA leader adds theater to Idaho trip

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — National Rifle Association President Charlton Heston is adding a theater performance to his trip in part to entertain Idaho.

Heston and his wife Lydia Clarke Heston will perform the two-person play, "Love Letters" by A.R. Gurney, on June 24 at Idaho Falls' Colonial Theater, the day after Heston takes his well-known conservative views before the Republican State Convention in Pocatello.

Heston, famed for his role as Moses in "The Ten Commandments," agreed to do the play to help the theater's schedule after Robert Wagner and Jill St. John canceled their appearance in the play because of other commitments.

The play covers a relationship of 60 years through the reading of love letters. Heston and his wife of 56 years performed it last summer for three weeks at London's Haymarket Theatre.

Commissioners rail against abandonment

LEWISTON (AP) — Nez Perce County commissioners have not taken a formal stand on the proposed abandonment of part of Camas RailNet railroad's line, but they dislike the loss of a transportation link.

Commission Chairman J.R. Van Tassel told the board Monday he does not look favorably on abandoning infrastructure. Commissioner James Soyk added that the time will come when people will leave.

Camas RailNet proposes abandoning the 66-mile rail spur from Spalding to Grangeville. Company officials say it is too expensive to operate. Grain growers warn it will drive up the cost of bringing their wheat to market.

Pro-life groups ponder candidates

LEWISTON (AP) — Idaho's anti-abortion groups are split about whether to support any of the candidates in the Republican 1st District congressional primary.

Idaho Right to Life's board of directors opted not to endorse any of the three leading GOP candidates — Lt. Gov. Butch Otter of Star, former Idaho Republican Party Chairman Ron McMurray of Lewiston and Idaho Family Forum founder Dennis Mansfield of Boise.

"They are all pro-life to varying degrees," President Patrick Benson of Nampa said.

Benson said McMurray worked hard on behalf of Idaho Right to Life as chairman of the state

Republican Party from 1996 until last summer when he resigned to run for Congress.

And he cited Mansfield's work against abortion in both the educational and legislative arenas.

"Based on that, we can't endorse one over the other," Benson said.

But the board for the Idaho Chooses Life political action committee formally endorsed Mansfield.

"He has a proven record of fighting for and advocating for unborn children," Executive Director David Ripley said.

"That's the kind of person we need in Congress."

Bauer pushes for Mansfield

BOISE (AP) — Former GOP presidential candidate Gary Bauer plans to visit Idaho on his 54th birthday to raise money for congressional hopeful Dennis Mansfield.

Bauer is slated to participate in a $10-per-person fund-raiser May 4 in Boise.

"It's a race politically that we're very interested in," said Bill Moeller, political director for the Campaign for Working Families, which Bauer founded. "We'd like to replace Helen Chenoweth-Hage, voted with anti-abortion interests as a member of the Idaho Legislature in the 1970s, supporting the reversal to strong abortion restrictions had the U.S. Supreme Court ever reversed the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision. That has since been repeated."

Bauer dropped out of the race for the GOP presidential nomination in February because of success of front-runners George W. Bush and John McCain.

Bauer served in the Reagan administration as a legislative director. He and Mansfield became acquainted when Bauer was president of the Washington D.C.-based Family Research Council from 1992-98.

Mansfield headed up the Idaho Family Forum, but quit to campaign for Idaho's 1st Congressional District seat. There currently are 11 candidates for the job.

WORLD

Two Iranian students read the reformist daily newspaper 'Mosharekat' at the Khatami Technical University in Tehran, Iran Tuesday. Hundreds of students cut classes to rally for support of Iran's President Mohammad Khatami, whose reform movement suffered a blow this week when hard-line opponents closed down 13 pro-democracy newspapers and magazines and jailed two journalists.

Hard-liners put mounting pressure on Iran's Khatami

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's hard-liners have stepped up pressure on President Mohammad Khatami, annulling another election result in a legislative district won by a moderate Khatami ally.

Alarmed by the sound beating they took from reformists in February's legislative elections, hard-liners are trying to roll back Khatami's reforms in a bid to protect their own rule. In addition to annulling election results in 12 seats won by Khatami allies, they have closed 13 pro-democracy publications and jailed two journalists in recent weeks.

The crackdown reflects the considerable power hard-liners in the ruling clergy still wield in Iran.

State-run radio said Tuesday that the Guardian Council had annulled the election of reformist Mohammad Farrokhi to represent the town of Jiroft in southern Kerman province. In addition, the radio quoted a statement from the hard-line body as saying final results for Tehran, where the pro-Khatami Interior Ministry says the reformists won 29 of 30 seats, have been delayed.

After Tuesday's statement was broadcast on radio, Ayatollah Ahmad Jannati, head of the Guardian Council, denied there was any plan to annul results in Tehran. But he added that "there are irregularities which may lead to minor changes," the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

Witness: Serbs used rape for 'better morale'

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — "I'm proud to be here! Let the world know what they did!"

The 35-year-old rape victim stood out from earlier witnesses in the trial of three Bosnian Serb fighters, projecting a remarkable strength and defiance as she testified Tuesday that she was forced to have sex more than 150 times during six weeks of detention.

She also went the farthest in corroborating a contention of war crimes prosecutors: that rape was an explicit element of Serb military strategy during the 1992-95 ethnic conflict following the breakup of Yugoslavia. Serb soldiers, she told the U.N. court, were authorized to have sex with prisoners "to increase better morale on the battlefield."

In the trial before the U.N. war crimes tribunal for the former Yugoslav, three Bosnian Serbs — Dragoljub Kunarac, Radomir Kovac and Zoran Vukovic — are charged with rape, torture and enslavement as war crimes and crimes against humanity. All three have pleaded innocent to the charges, which carry a maximum life prison sentence.

The victim also praised Serb guards who gave her money to buy food and clothing for her children.

"Even among them there were some good people," she said. "One of those guards who opposed them taking women out, he cried out: 'What are you doing to those women? Enough is enough!'"

She said the soldiers responded by claiming they had certificates which said "they needed sex to have better morale on the battlefield."

Such certificates were allegedly issued by Foca Police Chief Dragan Gagovic. Gagovic was killed last year by French peacekeepers who tried to arrest him while working for the tribunal.

The Foca trial, which began March 20, is the first to focus on sexual enslavement during wartime. Witness No. 95 was the sixth of at least 10 rape victims expected to testify in the case.

At least 20,000 women on all sides were raped during the Bosnian war, according to a 1993 European Community investigation. However, the so-called "rape camps" in the eastern Bosnian city of Foca were the most notorious instance of systematic sexual assault.

In the spring of 1992, Serb fighters overran Foca and surrounding villages and rounded up Muslim women who had fled into forests as their homes were shelled and set ablaze.

Witness No. 95 was separated from her husband. She was taken along with her 1 1/2-year-old daughter, 3-year-old son and scores of other women and children at Foca High School and held there overnight.

Daily and nightly, the woman was taken away and raped in classrooms and apartments. Finally, in August 1992, she was released.

The woman's voice was scrambled as she testified from behind glass windows with blinds to conceal her identity from the public.

Light up your life with summer garden superstars

Netherlands Flower Bulb Information Center

Quick, while springtime's tulips, daffodils and hyacinths dominate the garden scene, stop in to check out and start thinking SUMMER. Now is the time to start planning your summer garden.

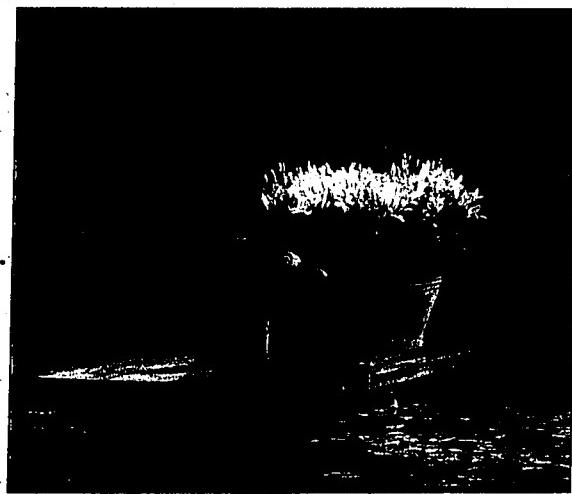

Most summer-flowering bulbs are "tender" bulbs, meaning that they are frost-sensitive and can only be set out in the garden after the threat of frost has passed. To "jump start" the season and achieve mature growth earlier, start them up indoors and then put them outside at the right time.

Another option is to buy summer bulbs ready-grown in pots at the garden center. Or just plant the bulbs straight into the garden or pots after the last frost.

Summer-flowering bulbs originate from tropical and sub-tropical regions. Along with a love of warm weather, they bring the exuberant look of tropical abundance. In the summer border, summer bulbs serve best as dramatic players. Their lush exotic looks will in broad strokes of color, or as colorful splashes here and there, to highlight the colors and textures of other plants.

Following are "best bets" selected by the Netherlands Flower Bulb Information Center for planting this summer. All are readily available at garden centers, home centers and from mail-order catalogues. For a full list of national sources, see NHIC's website.

• Scuba-Swimming Dahlias: Stars of the garden set, dahlias dash in the late summer garden with an intoxicating intensity of color and form. The range of dahlias varieties available is astounding. These sun-lovers come in nearly every color imaginable (except blue), on stems ranging from 12 inches to 5 feet tall, with flowers ranging from soft peony shapes to spiky cactus shapes. Pom-pom dahlias have tight balls of tiered, rounded petals, while others look reminiscent of daisies or anemones.

• Begonia: Begonias are so velvety, so lush, tuberous begonias are attracting a tremendous following, being one of the few brightly colored summer flowers to bloom abundantly despite shade or filtered light. With voluminous nodding flowers in the richest shades of deep to pastel red, pink, apricot, white, yellow, champagne, orange, and bi-colors, begonias sometimes look too good to be real. If well treated, they will bloom themselves silly.

Please see FLOWERS, Page C3

What do you do when blooms fade?

Netherlands Flower Bulb Information Center

People often wonder what to do when tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, Easter lilies and other spring-blooming bulb flowers have faded. Here are some tips provided by the Netherlands Flower Bulb Information Center in New York City.

After spring-flowering bulbs have faded, snip off the dead flowers so they won't go to seed, but let the green foliage die back naturally, a process which generally takes about six weeks. (A dead-heading exception: daffodils do not require dead-heading, though many people choose to do it for aesthetic reasons.) Large naturalized beds of daffodils can be left "au naturel" after blooming and suffer no ill effects.

Avoid the urge to "tidy up" bulb plantings after bloom by tying up the leaves with string or rubber bands. The six week leaf die-back time is a critical "work period" for leaves busy with photosynthesis to the process by which leaves absorb energy and sunshine into the starches that recharge the bulb with "food" for next year's bloom. The leaves must be free to soak up sunshine during this period.

If dying foliage seems unattractive, the best solution is camouflage. Interplant with hostas or other leafy perennials. They will grow up and around fading bulb plants.

Remember that some bulbs, such as tulips and hyacinths, do not always come back strongly in subsequent years. If the variety you planted wasn't a variety

Nurturing your lawn keeps our water clean

Your lawn might be the best water purification system around. The Professional Lawn Care Association of America says that lawns help keep our lakes and streams clean when they filter rainwater into the soil, rather than allowing it to run into storm sewers. When a healthy, dense lawn absorbs rainfall, it prevents runoff and erosion, too.

Roots grow deep in the thatch layer and topsoil of a lawn, breaking down materials such as what lawns filter water as well. Well-managed turf absorbs and holds water better than any other ground cover, university tests show.

To find out more about your lawn's purification system and how to nurture your lawn, send a SASE to PLCAA, Attn: "Water Quality," 1000 Johnson Ferry Road, NE, Suite C-135, Marietta, GA 30068. Ask for your free copy of "Water Quality and Your Lawn."

DEAR CATHY: How long does fertilizer hold its nutrition? The reason I'm asking is because there is a place that sold their cows five years ago and there is still some manure in the corral. I can get some, but thought maybe it was too old.

-READY TO PLANT

GREEN THUMPREINTS
Cathy Walworth

DEAR READY: No one has ever asked me that before, and I don't have the answer you're looking for. I can tell you that the organic matter you're referring to is still a good thing to add to your soil. There is some nutritional value to it, certainly, but the more valuable asset is its ability to amend and improve the soil structure. When you add organic material to your soil, you increase sandy or silty soil's capacity to hold water. Organic matter acts as microscopic separators to hold clingsy clay particles apart from one another. You can't lose. Load up some of that free soil amendment and reap the benefits.

TIP OF THE WEEK: Here's a fancy word for a down-to-earth concept: "phenology." No, not phonology — that's all about the bumps on your head. Phenology is the study of the timing of biological events, such as the migration of birds, the emergence of insects, and the flowering of plants. Why should you care? Actually, phenology often provides a pretty accurate timetable for when you should be doing what in the garden. An example of this is the old folk suggestion that you should plant your corn when the oak leaves are the size of a squirrel's ear. You may have heard you shouldn't fertilize your lawn until the forsythias begin to bloom. Phenology says nature-based indicators can help you pinpoint exactly the right time to plant, prune or prepare to deal with insect pests. Might even make more sense than trying to schedule your garden activities around zone maps and last frost dates in the back of a gardening book. After all, my neighbor says the mosquitoes come two weeks after the frogs and crickets start to sing — and he's never been wrong.

For sweet-tart combo: Try strawberries, rhubarb

By Carol J.G. Ward
Knight Ridder News Service

• Rhubarb: Choose crisp, unblemished stalks with a bright color and no sign of limpness. If leaves are attached, make sure they are unwilted and blemish-free. Fresh rhubarb, wrapped in a plastic container, can be stored in the refrigerator for up to three days. Before preparing, trim any leaves and discard them. Trim both ends, and pull strings away, grasping them between your thumb and a knife. Rinse under running water to remove grit.

• Strawberries: Pick berries that are red right up to their stems. Handle gently. Chill as soon as possible after picking. When you buy pre-picked berries, choose fruit that is plump, clean and deep red with bright-green caps. You can store in the refrigerator, unwashed, with stems attached, for about three days. Rinse gently just before preparing; pat dry with a paper towel. Allow berries to reach room temperature before serving. To freeze, hull the berries, then rinse and drain. Place in a single layer on a baking sheet or jelly roll pan. When frozen place in freezer bags and return to freezer.

RHUBARB STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

23 oz p sugar
23 cups fresh strawberries
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger

2 cups quartered fresh strawberries

8 individual sponge shortcake cups

2 pints low-fat vanilla ice cream
Combine sugar, cornstarch and ginger in a 2-quart glass measure or casserole. Stir in orange juice, then rhubarb.

Cover with vented plastic wrap and microwave on high 4 minutes. Add orange juice, re-cover. Microwave on High 2 more minutes. Cool at least 10 minutes. Refrigerate any sauce not used. To serve, fill shortcake cup with 1/4 cup ice cream. Spoon about 1/4 cup sauce over. Serves 8.

Ask the Experts!

Q: How do I know if my garden soil is good?

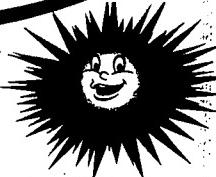

A: You can test your soil with an inexpensive testing kit available at garden centers. Most plants prefer soil that has a slightly acidic to neutral pH. You can adjust your soil by adding nutrients such as lime or sulphur. Soil can also be built up and enriched by the addition of materials such as peat moss, humus and compost.

Q: How can I get my paint job to look more professional?

What kind of paint is best?

A: Wash surfaces well and remove old paint. Use caulkling or putty on cracks. Use primer, and then two coats of paint. Flat paint masks flaws, but is hard to clean. Semigloss is washable, good for bathrooms and children's rooms. High-gloss is washable, and perfect for windows and doors.

Cover with 1 can mushrooms and 1 can black olives. Cut up enough potatoes, carrots and more onions (if desired) to make up enough for your meal. Pour the rest of the barbecue sauce over the top and seal with a tight lid or aluminum foil. Bake at 300 degrees until done (maybe 4 to 5 hours), the slower the better.

STRAWBERRY CREAM CHEESE PIE

Lilies are perennials that will come back year after year. Plant them in garden beds or containers or in combination with other plants. Best in deep shade or filtered light, caladiums sport glorious swaying leaves in a wide range of colorations, from pale green-and-white to ruby red and deep green to soft green spotted with pink.

• Cannas have a distinctly upright luster with tropical looking foliage in shades of green, brown, burgundy or multi-colored stripes. That they also sport flamboyant blooms is a bonus. Their winged flowers flaunt themselves atop 3- to 5-foot plants. Canna thrive in full sun and hot weather.

all season long.

• Pineapple lilles (eucomis, if you please): The eucomis bi-color is a tropical plant extraordinaire, a pineapple look-alike, topped by a 15-inch spire of tiny greenish-white flowers and a base of strap-like green leaves. Place in full sun or shade. The plants bloom in July and August, but, even after flowering, continue to hold their own in the garden. Plant in good soil and water well.

• Love those lilles: Lilles are so spectacular that one might assume they're "tough to beat." But lilles are so unfussy that they don't even care whether they are planted in the spring or the fall.

Fade

"marked "good for perennializing," then it's probably best to treat them as annuals and compost or toss them after bloom, and re-plant new bulbs in the fall.

Planting out indoor forced bulbs (potted daffodils, crocuses) into the garden after they've faded is never a good idea. Unlike tulips, planted in the ground during the fall planting season – or even spring-planted pre-sprouted "bulblets" which can manure in place in your garden – forced bulbs that have bloomed and faded indoors have been through a pretty exhausting process and may or may not rebloom.

– It is possible to replant some forced bulbs outdoors after they bloom indoors, but not all. Bulbs are good for perennializing, though, if well-planted out after forcing. Plant them in the garden when they've finished flowering. Give them water and some slow release bulb food. Then wait till the leaves brown and die back before chopping them off at ground level.

It's a different story with bulbs such as tulips, which do not readily come back even when originally planted in the garden in fall. The same is true of paperwhite narcissi. Forced hyacinths may come back in the garden, but not with same full, robust blooms that they had the year before.

Easter lilles cannot be counted on to bloom nicely again outdoors – but quite often they do nicely outdoors. Bottom line: What we call Easter Lilles in America are actually Lilium longiflorum, a much loved garden lily! The potted Easter lily has been forced into bloom early – so it has been under stress. Should you try it outdoors? What's to lose? They'll either take hold and come back to bloom for years to come or they won't.

Here's what to do: once the Easter Lily bloom has faded, remove the plant from its pot and plant it outdoors in a sunny, protected location, where the soil has good drainage. Plant it a little deeper than it was in the pot. Water well. A light sprinkling of timed-release fertilizer is appropriate. Be sure to allow the foliage to die back fully, until yellowed. When established, the lily will bloom in mid-summer, during its normal bloom period. Remember, it was originally forced (tricked) into early bloom for Easter. Now it is living on its own clock! (Don't plant Easter Lilles near other garden lilles as they may have picked up a virus during the nursery forcing process.) A protective mulch is appropriate in colder climates.

FOOD &amp; HOME

Cordell is favorite with readers

You can almost count on finding some similarities in most new homes, no matter what the size. It's highly probable that the primary family gathering space is an informal, vaulted great room, open to the kitchen and dining room, or a wet bar. Equally likely, the house has a walk-in closet or fireplace, an outdoor living area, at least two bathrooms, indoor utilities and plenty of natural light.

When the Oregon-based Associated Designs staff examined the three plans that drew the greatest reader response in 1999, they couldn't help but notice these similarities.

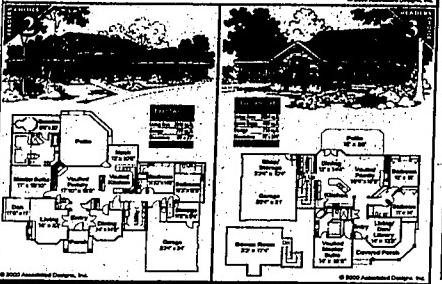

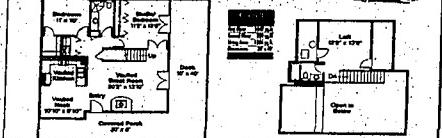

The favorite - Cordell - is a rustic A-frame with a mere 1,300 square feet of floor space. What a contrast to the second in popularity, the Clearheart! A dramatic two-story, two-car garage, porch offers a royal welcome to the sprawling brick-clad, estate-sized, ramblingary home, which measures in at close to 3,350 square feet.

And the third-ranking Clearheart falls somewhere in the middle, both size and style-wise. The comfortable country-style plan has close to 2,250 square feet of floor space, and is neither rustic nor elegant.

The Cordell is a compact vacation retreat with a wide porch deck, a front door and transitions to an ever-expanding deck. The vaulted ceiling in this cozy plan increases volume as well in the kitchen and nook as well as the great room.

The Brentwood has fireplaces in both the formal and informal gathering spaces. Double doors in the grand entry open into the living room and dining room, where light washes in through wide bay windows. The elegant master suite is linked to a den/study, and boasts a spacious bathroom and double walk-in closet, plus an exercise sun room with a deck.

Designed to the specifications of readers who participated in the 1999 Homes from the Heart survey, the Clearheart has a wrap-around porch and a rear patio. Gathering spaces are spacious, the master suite is vaulted, and the bayed front room can be put to a variety of uses. The deep two-car garage has plenty of space for cars, an office, plus a huge bonus room upstairs.

For a review plan of your favorite home plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $20 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Drive, Eugene, OR 97402. Please specify the name and number of your favorite home plan. Enclose a self-addressed envelope with a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring 300 home plans is available for $12. For more information, call (800) 634-0123.

Burn calories by being pushy

The Philadelphia Inquirer

Pusby people: Want to burn off some pounds? Stop burning gasoline and get a push mower. The garden-variety historians at Sears say that the original push-type lawn mower in 19th-century England was advertised as "an amusing, useful and healthy exerciser for the country gentleman." And, in fact, a 165-pound person can burn about 500 calories an hour pushing a mower.

Practically living in your car, feel you're spending too much time away from home? Maytag and Ford have come up with a minivan that includes a kitchen, den and laundry room built-in. The Windstar Solutions vehicle, unveiled at the recent Kitchen/Bath Industry Show in Chicago, is meant to judge customer reaction to car appliances. There are no plans to put it on sale, but both companies think there might be many customers who would want to cook and clean in their cars.

Staying close to home: A survey by Sheraton Hotels & Resorts found that more than two-thirds of the parents who took part have refused to go on a business trip because of conflicts with their children's activities. "The playroom wins over the boardroom," says a vice president of Sheraton's parent company.

Back online: All those hours in front of the PC can come back to haunt you. So says American Furniture Rentals of Bensalem, Pa., which, in the last decade, has seen a 67 percent increase in sales and rentals of ergonomic desk chairs with lumbar support systems.

Get gardening tools ready for springtime

By Dru Wilson
The Gazette

It's almost time to turn your garden soil to prepare it for spring planting. But first, maybe you should make sure you have the proper tools that they're ready to dig, chop and cut.

Here are some tips:

HAND TOOLS:

▲ To clean and oil shovels and forks, fill a bucket with sand and pour in about a quart of old motor oil. Shove the blade in and out of the sand. The sharp sand scrapes away dirt and rust, and oil lubricates blades and tines.

▲ To sharpen a shovel, hoe, loppers or pruning shears and lawn mower blades after cleaning, use a file. Stroke the same angle as the bevel from the back of the blade.

▲ If you don't own a file or lack the expertise to sharpen tools, professional services will sharpen tools and blades for a nominal fee. They also put an edge on chain saws and hedge trimmers, which have serrated blades that require special sharpening tools.

▲ Rub the wooden handles of shovels, hoes and rakes with linseed oil to prevent drying and cracking, which lead to splinters.

▲ Rub blades of pruning shears with vegetable oil to prevent rust.

After using shears or loppers to prune a tree that has cancer or blight, disinfect the blades before using them on the next tree to avoid spreading the disease.

▲ If you often lose track of tools, wrap bright orange or pink tape around the handle. Use bicycle or tennis racket tape if handles have become rough.

▲ If water hoses are damaged with permanent kinks or holes, worn out attachments or missing washers, check local hardware stores for repair kits.

▲ If your shovel or rake is broken beyond repair, turn the shovel blade into a garden border and attach a tined rake end to the wall and hang tools, jackets or hoses on the tines.

LAWN MOWERS:

Give mowers a tune-up in spring and winterize them in fall.

▲ Winterizing includes draining and flushing the tank of leftover gas. If gas was left in the tank during the winter, it probably has been broken down into a goo that can clog the carburetor when started in the spring.

▲ Change the oil once a year.

▲ A tune-up also includes replacing the spark plug and air filter.

▲ Sharpen the blade. A blade needs sharpening if the grass tips turn brown, indicating they are being torn off rather than sliced cleanly.

▲ Rub blades of pruning shears with vegetable oil to prevent rust.

After using shears or loppers to prune a tree that has cancer or blight, disinfect the blades before using them on the next tree to avoid spreading the disease.

Share love of gardening with gifts

Q: What are some great gifts for gardeners?

ASK MARTHA
Stewart

SEED PACKET FOLDER

Try this creative way to share your favorite seeds with a fellow gardener: Make a paper folder that opens to reveal up to 10 seed packets — along with growing tips from you.

Begin with a 13 1/2-by-19-inch piece of heavy decorative paper. With the long edge in front of you, measure 4 1/2 inches from the left-hand side and fold the paper vertically using a ruler and a bone folder (a tool used to make creases without cutting); alternatively, draw the line in pencil and fold along the line.

Repeat vertical scores at 4 3/4 inches, 9 1/4 inches, 9 3/4 inches, 14 1/4 inches, and 14 1/2 inches from the left. You should have four panels: 4 1/2 inches wide and three narrow columns for spines. On the left-most panel, set a seed packet face-down. Turn it over, then affix with a piece of tape. The tape should be hidden when the panels are flipped down into its face-forward, upright position. Add a few more packets, overlapping them. Repeat with the rightmost panel.

On the two center panels, write notes to accompany the seed packets. Fold the paper shut and secure with a ribbon.

TREE SEEDLINGS

A young tree gift to commemorate a new phase in life, such as a birth or wedding, grows up with its caretakers and provides a lasting reminder of your friendship. Seedlings usually come from the nursery planted in cardboard containers. For a prettier presentation, wrap brown kraft paper or wrapping paper around the container and tie with waxed twine or ribbon. Cut out a leaf shape from colored paper to create a gift tag.

GARDENERS' GIFT BASKET

To equip a beginning gardener with the tools of the trade, fill a basket with a selection of gardening essentials. Choose a sturdy basket that can withstand a long life in the garden. Dress it up by tying a bow to the base of the handle and lining with a bed of tissue paper. Add a pair of garden clogs, canvas gloves, an apron, pruning shears and shears, secateurs, trowels and plant labels.

GARDEN FIRST-AID KIT

Insect bites, sunburn, and pricks and scratches are inevitable nuisances of outdoor life. A first-aid kit makes a thoughtful gift.

To hold the supplies, you'll need a small plastic or metal box or a plastic toiletries bag. Fill with isopropyl alcohol pads, antibiotic ointment packets, adhesive bandages, tweezers, sunblock (make sure it's PABA-

-free, hypoallergenic and water-resistant), insect repellent, special skin cleanser for use after contact with poison ivy or poison oak, bug-bite salve, lip balm, aspirin and soothing hand cream.

TOOL APRON

A simple linen apron with pockets keeps gardening tools close at hand. You'll need raw linen and cotton-twill tape, both pre-shrunk. Cut a linen rectangle 2 feet by 18 inches, making the selvage edge one of the longer sides. Lay it flat, with the selvage edge toward you. Fold edge up 6 inches, and press the crease with a hot iron. Hem the outside edges.

Sew several parallel seams from the selvage to the fold to form pockets. Backstitch seams for reinforcement. Two 7-inch and three 3-inch pockets should accommodate tools, gloves and seed packets.

Center the linen on a 4-foot-long piece of twill tape, folding the tape in half lengthwise so it wraps over the top of the apron; press, and pin in place. Topstitch the tape to the linen near the tape's bottom edge.

The apron makes a fine gift on its own — but it's even better when filled with supplies.

HAM AND ASPARAGUS CREPES WITH MORNAJ SAUCEHerbed crepes:
1 cup all-purpose flour
4 eggs
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 stick unsalted butter, meltedPinch sugar
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons minced green onions1 tablespoon snipped basil
1 tablespoon snipped chivesFilling:
2 cups diced cooked ham
1 cup diced fresh or frozen asparagus

3 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided

1/2 cup heavy cream
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper

3 cups cooked rice

Mornay sauce:

3 tablespoons butter or margarine

3 tablespoons all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon chicken bouillon granules

3/4 cup milk

1/2 cup shredded Swiss cheese

1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Crepes: Combine eggs, flour, salt and sugar; whisk until smooth. Add melted butter. Stir well. Gradually add milk while whisking continuously until smooth.

Stir in green onions, basil, and chives; let rest 30 minutes. Batter will be thin; add additional milk if necessary. Heat an 8-inch skillet and brush with vegetable oil (or use a nonstick skillet). Pour 1/4 cup batter into the pan. Tilt pan so batter covers the bottom.

Cook until golden brown on underside. Loosen edge, turn, and cook until lightly browned on other side. Cool on wire rack; stack with a piece of wax paper between each crepe.

Filling: Cook ham and asparagus in 1 tablespoon butter in large skillet over medium-high heat until asparagus is tender crisp. Set aside. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter in same skillet; stir in cream, cheese and eggs. Add rice and reserved ham mixture.

Sauces: Melt butter in skillet; stir in bouillon granules and flour until it forms a paste. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly until thick. Stir in cheeses until melted. Fill crepes by placing ham mixture on 12 of the crepes. Roll up. Place on serving plate and top with sauce. Serves 6.

Sometimes, you just gotta have coffeecake

What is it about spring mornings that suggest coffeecake? Other times of the year I am happy with cereal or toast for breakfast, but when spring arrives, coffeecake just tastes good. Maybe it is the long evenings that tempt me to do some baking before bed time. Maybe it is the cool mornings or that in-between temperature - too warm for oatmeal, but not quite warm enough for juice or liquid breakfast drink only.

To me, nothing tastes better on a lazy weekend morning, for company brunch or after church services than a coffeecake that was mixed up the night before, refrigerated and baked fresh in the morning.

TRY IT - YOU'LL LIKE IT.

POPFECT STRUDEL DOUGH

1 1/2 to 2 cups flour
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 egg whites
4 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 cups fine white bread crumbs
sauteed in 2/3 cup butter
4 cups filling

VALLEY COOKING
Dixie Thomas Reale

Place flour in a bowl. Add sugar, salt, lemon juice, egg whites and vegetable oil. Using hand, work ingredients together. If necessary, add additional water or flour to make a slightly sticky dough. Knead until elastic and smooth. Place in greased bowl. Brush top with oil. Cover with a towel and allow to warm up. When warm, roll out on a floured surface till very thin - less than 1/8 inch thick. Place topping in the center of the dough and sprinkle sauteed bread crumbs over the filling. Fold the sides over the top of the topping and seal closed. Flip strudel upside down and place on greased baking pan, butter the top and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour until golden brown.

FILLINGS

Apple
1 cup ground walnuts
4 cups peeled sliced apples
1 cup raisins
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2/3 cup cinnamon sugar (2 tablespoons cinnamon to 2 cups sugar)

Vanilla

Mix together and place in the center of the strudel.
Cherry:
4 cups pitted cherries
1 cup cinnamon sugar (2 tablespoons cinnamon to 2 cups sugar)
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Mix together and place in center of strudel.

Mincemeat:

4 cup mincemeat pie filling placed in center of strudel.

SOUR CREAM COFFEECAKE

4 packages active dry yeast
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup cold milk
1 cup sour cream
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 egg yolks
5 to 6 cups flour

1 1/2 cups soft butter
Mix yeast with sugar and 1/2 cup warm water. Allow to work for a few minutes till frothy. Add milk, sour cream, lemon juice, eggs and vanilla. Add enough flour to make a medium firm dough. Beat in the butter. Knead until elastic and smooth.

Place in a greased bowl and allow to rise in a warm place for at least 4 hours before baking. Once the dough doubles in size, punch it down. Once it is thoroughly chilled, it can be kept in the refrigerator up to 3 days. This recipe makes enough dough for 3 coffeecakes.

You can have fresh coffeecake three mornings in a row or use it for a big holiday breakfast when you have guests. Roll out 1/3 of the dough and fill with your favorite canned fruit filling as a topping for apple, peach, blueberry or coffee cake. Bake at 350 for 45 minutes to 1 hour, until golden brown.

Dixie Thomas Reale welcomes comments on recipes. Her address is 503 W. Eighth, Jerome, Idaho 83338.

Some things are just as tasty the second time around

By Gary Krino
The Orange County Register

Leftover Easter eggs can be added to a sauce and served over a variety of beds including rice, pasta, toast, English muffins and leftover ham. Or the eggs sliced in half, arranged in triangles of buttered toast, garnished with watercress, and accompanied by a green salad and something to dip, yield a rather sophisticated meal repast.

Include leftover ham in breakfast omelets, or fry it up and serve it as a side to waffles or pancakes. Of course, it also makes exceptional sandwiches. Try it grilled with sharp Cheddar.

Dice it into most any green potato casserole. Or serve it as a main course with a spinach salad or steamed broccoli with butter, cheese and garlic croutons. If any of the grain is left over, reheat it the next morning, top with a poached egg and serve for breakfast.

Ham on the rebound also works beautifully with most any pasta - from a cold salad to a hot entree.

HAM, CHEDDAR AND POTATO GRATIN

1 1/2 cups chicken broth

1/2 cup heavy cream

3 cloves garlic
5 or 6 fresh sage leaves, or 1 teaspoon dried sage
1 1/2 pounds baked ham, cut into slices about 1/2-inch thick, divided use
4 large baking potatoes (about 3 pounds) peeled and thinly sliced, divided use
1/2 pound sharp Cheddar cheese, finely shredded, divided use

Ground black pepper to taste
Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Butter shallow 3-quart baking dish. In small saucepan, combine broth, cream, garlic and sage. Bring to boil, reduce heat to low and simmer, uncovered, 3 minutes. Arrange a third of the potatoes in layer on bottom of prepared dish. Top with half of diced ham and a third of the shredded cheese. Repeat layers. Top with remaining potatoes and remaining cheese. Remove broth-cream mixture from heat. Remove and discard garlic cloves. Season broth-cream mixture to taste with pepper and pour over layered potatoes, distributing evenly. Bake, uncovered, until potatoes are tender when pierced and top is brown, about 1 hour. Remove from oven and let stand about 5 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

REAL SCOTCH EGGS

2 fresh raw eggs
8 hard-cooked eggs
1/2 pound cooked ham
1/4 pound dried bread crumbs
5/8 cup dried apple spice
Freshly ground black pepper
Butter and olive oil

Peel hard-cooked eggs. Beat fresh eggs in shallow bowl.

Process ham in food processor, grind or mince ham and anchovies, then combine with bread crumbs, spice, a little black pepper and most of beaten egg. Divide ham-bread crumb mixture into 8 equal portions. Break each hard-cooked egg with a hammer to break egg. Using your hands encase an egg in a portion of ham-bread crumb mixture. Fry in butter and olive oil until browned all over. Remove and serve. Yield: 5 servings of 2 eggs each.

Belgian Wauters first pick in WNBA draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Ann Wauters, considered the best prospect in Europe, and Tausha Mills, a "female Shaq," were the top two picks in the WNBA draft.

Wauters, a 6-foot-4 center from Belgium, was the No. 1 pick by the Cleveland Rockers.

Unlike last year when Chamique Holdsclaw was the consensus No. 1, the relatively weak draft featured no dominant player. Stars on the national championship Connecticut and runner-up Tennessee teams are all juniors.

"I'm very excited to come to America," Wauters said. "It's a very different game than in Europe; it's very aggressive."

The 20-year-old Wauters averaged 13.8 points and 6.8 points for USV Orchids in France. She'll bring an inside threat to a Cleveland team that finished 7-25 last season.

So will 6-3 center Tausha Mills for Washington, whose physical play at the pre-draft camp in Chicago raised her stock and earned the nickname of Los Angeles Lakers star Shaquille O'Neal.

"She's referred to as a female Shaq," WNBA president Val Ackerman said. "She may grow into that literally and figuratively. She caught the attention of coaches with her size and strength and touch."

Mills, a 1996 graduate of Alabama, also played for the Chicago Condors of the ABL. She will join former SEC rivals Nikki McCray and Holdsclaw on the Mystics.

"I'm pleased to play with the best and get the exposure," Mills said.

Post players were at a premium in the four-round, 64-player draft, making up half of the 16 first-round picks. The league expands to 16 teams this season, adding franchises in Miami, Indiana, Seattle and Portland, Ore.

Eight college seniors, five international players and three former ABL players were chosen

Ann Wauters
Drafted by Cleveland Rockers

in the first round. Four-time Olympian Teresa Edwards chose not to play in the league for the second consecutive season.

Cleveland coach Dan Hughes, who only saw Wauters on tape, was impressed.

"I wanted a mobile post, somebody who could run the floor," said Hughes, a former Charlotte coach who replaced Linda Hill-MacDonald. "She brings so many elements to our program. We were hard hit (at center)."

At No. 3, Detroit selected Edwin Brown, a 5-9 forward and All-Big 12 tournament MVP at Texas. The Shock acquired the third and eighth picks after trading leading scorer Jennifer Azzi and its No. 12 pick to Utah Monday night. Azzi had threatened to play in the WNBA this season because of salary issues.

Orlando picked 6-5 center Cintia Dos Santos of Brazil at No. 4. Minnesota, which had three first-round selections because of trades, chose guards Grace Daley of Tulane and Betty Lennox of Louisiana Tech with the fifth and sixth picks.

BRIEFLY IN MONEY

U.S. West launches digital tech Web site

DENVER - U.S. West is launching a Web-based think tank to share information on digital technology with the public and businesses.

The Center for Digital Culture will be an independent clearinghouse for reports, information and resources, Vice President Philip Burgess said.

"It's been bothered me that people who know the most about the digital revolution - the companies that are doing it and have the most information - don't make it easily available to opinion leaders and others trying to understand what this revolution means for people and communities and enterprises," he said.

The center eventually will operate a Web site, www.digitalculturecenter.com, which will offer special reports, news briefs, guest columns and a message board.

The center will not commission studies but will gather information already available inside U.S. West, which offers phone service to a region that includes Magic Valley.

"There is a lot of valuable stuff that is not proprietary, that is not involved in a competitive advantage, but simply lays out how this digital revolution will unfold," Burgess said.

Mining company gets extension on notes

BOISE - Holders of Sunshine Mining and Refining Co. notes again have agreed to extend their maturity another 30 days.

The company reports that note holders approved a May 24 deadline. Sunshine is behind on $27 million in debt payments. Company officials say its predicament is a result of low silver prices and an inability to get an Argentine mine up and running.

The Sunshine Mine is one of three still operating in the depressed Coeur d'Alene silver district and employs about 250 people.

Sunshine has been notified by the New York Stock Exchange that the company has fallen below continued listing standards.

The company said its goal in ongoing negotiations with its debt holders is to regain a continued listing status.

Zions' income grows, except for merger costs

SALT LAKE CITY - Zions Bancorporation said its net income grew 20 percent in the first quarter to $57 million before expenses related to its failed merger with First Security Corp.

Revenue for the first three months of the year grew nearly 4 percent to $254 million compared with the first three months of last year.

Revenue growth was affected by venture capital losses in the first quarter of $5.1 million, said Harris Simmons, Zions' chief executive officer. In the first quarter of last year, Zions reported gains from venture capital investments and from the sale of some mortgage servicing rights of $9.8 million.

Utah's second-largest banking company, which has 11 Valley branches - said it spent $25.7 million after taxes in the first quarter on expenses related to the failed merger. It also reported an after-tax loss of $59.8 million in its portfolio of First Security stock.

Allstate blames earnings drop on nasty weather

CHICAGO - Allstate Corp. blamed its earnings shortfall on weather, saying storms caused unusually high losses in the first quarter. Total losses from the storms totaled about $248 million in the quarter, well above what the insurer expected.

Allstate CEO Edward Liddy said those catastrophic losses were the highest since the first quarter of 1994, which included losses from the Northridge earthquake in California.

This time, a hailstorm in Louisiana and tornadoes in Texas were mostly to blame, said Allstate spokesman Peter DeSoto. Also, snow that brought ice to much of the Midwest in January contributed to higher costs from car accidents.

The catastrophic losses shaved 12 cents more from earnings than Allstate expected, bringing the company's operating earnings to $481 million or 62 cents a diluted share, 3 cents short of analysts' expectations, according to First Call Corp.

Investors in Allstate's stock rose after the earnings announcement, probably because the company looked great compared with competitors. Allstate's stock also is considered a value.

Looking to buy back the business

Twin Falls man wants to purchase funeral home from Canadian corporation

By Rachel Denny
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - Four and a half years ago, business owner Paul Reynolds had only a five to 10 percent chance of surviving cancer, and he didn't feel like competing with other funeral homes in the area.

So he sold the business he had built in 1959 to a large Canadian corporation in December 1996.

Today he is almost to his five-year mark of cancer remission, and he wants the Reynolds Funeral Chapel back from

Loewen Group International Inc.

"When I sold the funeral home I was going through cancer with a great deal of expectation" of survival, Reynolds said. "That was the prime motivation and reason that I sold, because the doctors had done surgery earlier that year and I was in the midst of treatment. Now, I'm waiting for my five-year clearance and I'm feeling great."

"That makes the point of yes, I would like to buy this back now," he said. "I would like to have a chance to buy it back and do it again."

Before Reynolds sold the funeral home to Loewen he asked a number of people, including individuals on his staff, whether they were interested in purchasing the business, he said.

"Either nobody could afford it or nobody wanted to take the financial steps," Reynolds said.

So he sold the business to Loewen, which also bought White Mortuary and Valley and Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

But in June 1999, Loewen sought bankruptcy court protection after it ran up huge debts while expanding its funeral business in the United States.

The corporation now is in reorganization and has stalled payments to creditors, Reynolds said, which includes payments to Reynolds for the purchase of his funeral home.

That's just one more reason Reynolds would like to repurchase the business, he said.

"They're trying to get things changed around. By bankruptcy law they can't make any payments to me," Reynolds said. "For a year I haven't received any payments, any income."

Loewen still has eight years of payments to make to Reynolds, he said. As soon as the company sought bankruptcy protection, he made an offer to purchase back the funeral home, Reynolds said.

"We're willing to buy it back but that's about as far as it's gone," Reynolds said. "We're making an attempt, we've made an offer and we're waiting to hear."

Reynolds said his offer to Loewen was to negotiate a repurchase price. He did not disclose the original sale price.

"All we have done is said we are interested in buying back our properties," Reynolds said. "We're still waiting to hear back. They're not going to look us until

WESTERN BUSINESS

Oscar Cortez, right, prepares a batch of traditional Mexican baked goods at Antequera Panaderia in Albany, Ore., while owner Antonio Gutierrez checks on a heart-shaped cake.

Oregon retailers go after Hispanic niche

The Associated Press

ALBANY, Ore. - Two young men, with dark complexions and speaking Spanish, walk up to the counter and order a box of bolillos and a few various pastries.

Minutes later, up the aisle and another batch of traditional Mexican baked goods goes out the door of Antequera Panaderia, a new bakery that joins a small cadre of businesses that target the region's growing Hispanic population.

Social service experts estimate that about 4,000 Hispanic people live in Linn County, and the number is growing fast - faster, in fact, than any other ethnic group.

The county's population grew about 14 percent from 1990 to 1997. The Hispanic population grew by 70 percent. About a half-million Hispanics are expected to live in Oregon in 2000.

More than a social and cultural phenomenon, the growth of the Hispanic population is opening opportunities for a few retail businesses that specialize in selling items and pieces of cultures hundreds - even thousands - of miles away.

Antequera Panaderia, owned by Antonio Gutierrez of Albany, serves baked goods authentic to the Mexican state of Oaxaca and the area surrounding Mexico City.

Loaves of staple breads such as bolillos and teleros go out the door by the hundreds each day.

Pastries such as polvorones, conchas, orejas, campechanas and ojos de Pancha (a specialty recipe Gutierrez developed himself) line the racks of a glass display case.

A baker for the past 19 years, Gutierrez started his own about five years ago, operating out of his home. The home-based operation served him well.

But the past year or two, he has seen the number of Mexican immigrants, and his business, increase rapidly. Customers now come from towns farther away.

Business finally got too busy to run out of his home, necessitating his move four months ago to another location.

Mexican restaurants are common throughout the region. But most ignored the Mexican population.

The opening several years ago of Robertson marked the presence of a restaurant aimed at Hispanics.

Several grocery stores featuring Mexican goods have come and, in a couple of cases, in fact, than any other ethnic group.

The San Jose Mexican Store is a relatively new business aimed at the Spanish-speaking population.

Spanish-language posters announcing upcoming performances of "Caballo Dorado" in Salem and "Gran Bailazo" hang in the store's front windows.

Inside, two walls are filled with racks after rack of Spanish-language music discs. The store even carries Mexican junk food.

A rapidly growing market remains largely untapped by local businesses, said Ruth Esquer, a nutrition educator with the Linn County Health Department and former chairwoman of the county's Hispanic Committee.

"Our retail merchants are the ones that are missing out a lot," she said.

Local Hispanics are searching for places to buy traditional products, she said.

One or two Albany grocery stores do a fair job of stocking Mexican foods, but there is virtually no place to buy clothes representative of the Hispanic culture.

Most local Hispanics are from Mexico, but many also come from Central and South America.

Their numbers have grown an estimated 8 to 10 percent in the past four months alone, Esquer said.

As more and more California farmland is gobbled up by urban and commercial development, the number of agriculture jobs traditionally sought by many Hispanics has decreased, driving them north, she said.

Oregon's historic, albeit small, Hispanic population is also a draw to many.

"People are looking for places where they can feel comfortable," Esquer said.

Sandpiper site is sold

Pasta restaurant grows; canyon - rim project now has a liquor license

By Rachel Denny
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - For restaurateur Max Humphries, it's a chance to expand and upgrade a business that has been in the family since 1956.

For Joe Russell, it's a chance to fill a building, once home to The Sandpiper restaurant, but now stands vacant on Blue Lakes Boulevard North since that business closed several months ago.

And for Neilson and Co., it's a chance to buy a liquor license for its canyon-rim hotel, restaurant and retail project.

On Tuesday, Russell, former owner of the Sandpiper property, announced the sale of the property to Maxie's Pizza and Pasta and the sale of the liquor license that The Sandpiper used to develop and design business man Craig H. Neilson of Canyon Park LLC, for undisclosed sums.

Russell initially looked to lease the property but decided later it was in his best interests to sell, he said.

Humphries owns one other Maxie's restaurant in Twin Falls, at 120 Blue Lakes Blvd., and manages the Maxie's in Kimberly, which he opened and then sold.

The expansion of the business will not affect the two other restaurants, Humphries said.

"We wanted to get on north Blue Lakes," he said Tuesday. "We wanted to be closer to the motels, expand our concept, upscale it and add some things."

Humphries said he doesn't yet know when the new restaurant will open for business.

The new Maxie's will be a full-service Italian restaurant instead of the self-service format and limited pasta dishes offered at the older Twin Falls location, Humphries said.

"It's going to be just a different concept," he said. "It's not the same, but we will be full-service and more upscale. It's definitely going to be family-oriented; we will not serve liquor. We will serve wine, beer and soft drinks. We're going to do some different things that I just don't want to say too much about now."

"The main reason is to be on north Blue Lakes. It's actually two different markets and two different clientele," Humphries added.

As for the liquor license, plans are not yet concrete.

"The license will be held in anticipation of selling it, leasing it to an appropriate user for its mixed-use commercial development known as Canyon Park," Neilson and Co. acting spokeswoman Kelly Culbertson said in a written statement, without elaborating.

Neilson and Co. will lease parts of its canyon-rim development to other businesses.

Times-News correspondent Rachel Denny can be reached in Twin Falls at 743-3780.

WTO will look into Korean chip import complaint

The Associated Press

GENEVA - South Korea on Tuesday formally asked the World Trade Organization to rule against the United States for failing to end import penalties sought by Micron Technology on Korean-made computer chips.

Korea is complaining that Washington has maintained duties against two Korean semiconductor companies even after the WTO ruled them illegal.

The United States disputed the charge, claiming its import penalties comply with global trade rules.

If the dispute settlement panel finds that the United States is still acting illegally, South Korea could ask for compensation or permission to impose sanctions on U.S. imports.

The issue was referred to the WTO panel that first reviewed the case. Experts will have 90 days to report back.

The United States imposed the anti-dumping duties against Hyundai Electronics Industries Co. and LG Semicon after Idaho-based Micron accused the companies of dumping dynamic random access memory chips, or DRAMs, in the United States at below fair value.

The WTO panel of experts ruled last year that the action was not allowed because Washington had not used the right criteria to establish a case against the Korean companies.

The United States agreed to comply and amended its regulations. But after a second investigation, the duties were retained.

U.S. representative Dan Brinza emphasized to WTO officials that proper procedures were followed and the duties were maintained because a resumption of dumping was likely.

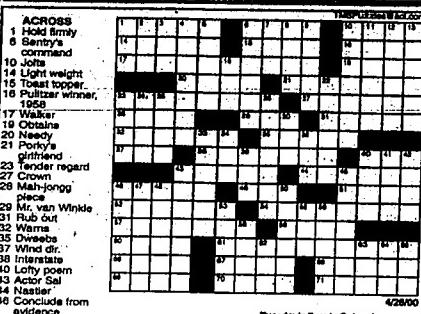

But the Koreans claimed the new U.S. regulations are still so vague that they continue to violate WTO requirements.

The United States adopted a very narrow standard that could be and in fact was - "explicated," a statement issued by the Korean government said. "The amended regulation does not impose on the United States the burden to establish that continued imposition of the anti-dumping duty is necessary."
